The work of the ladies did not show up Quite a large number from here attendas well owing to the cloudy weather ed the fair at Barton last Friday. Owing to the rain of Wednesday and Thursday but there were many pretty things there the St. Johnsbury fair was not largely and the art work compared very favorably with other years. A collection of Mrs. F. J. Willey went to Boston Satpaintings on fungi was among the finest urday to purchose new fall goods. She will also study the new styles in mil-linery at New York City before returning exhibit in the hall.

The children's department attracted many visitors and as all received a premium the list of exhibitors appear in another column. There was quite an exhibit of school work from the parochial schools and some very creditable drawings and penmanship were shown. The vegetable exhibit also compared very well with previous years.

FAST TIME AND GOOD TROTTING. The races Wednesday and Thursday furnished lots of interesting sport and as the track was in good condition some excellent time was made. The free-for-all was the greatest race of the fair and was not decided until five heats had been trotted. Both the drivers of E. E. Knott and Diavolo tried to break the track record of 2:15 which is held by Ham Brock's Barney, but owing to the wind the horses could not quite make it.

The 2:19 class proved another interesting race and Corbett was the general favorite, but was not steady enough to win a heat, though he came very near it at one time. In this race third and fourth money was divided between Corbett and Tommy L. Savena, owned by F. W. Emery of Littleton, formerly of St. Johnsbury, started in finely, but could not hold out and so the race went to

The feature of the 2:50 class was the William Morrison and Robinson Symes of Barnet were the guests of Miss Janette second heat which was a dead heat. Lady Weeks and Nettle came in even, Miss Alice Gibson, who has been spendhaving kept close together all around the ing the past year visiting friends in the track. Nettle finally won the race, west, returned a week ago and called on though Lady Weeks was a close second every beat. Mrs. Marker is stopping with her sis-

The running race was easily won by a thoroughbred from Marshfield as none of the Caledonia county horses could match his gait. E. F. Ruggles of Passumpsic had a fast horse, but it did not start with the rest in the second heat and only won third money. The follow-nished much enjoyment. C. C. Bonette made the best parachute drop ever seen at the grounds and landed on the Ladd farm in Waterford. He was ready to make an ascension on Wednesday, but the wind was too strong for any aerial feats. The platform attractions were up to former years and the trick bicyclist was the finest ever seen here. Most of the premiums have been paid by Treasurer Carr and the management expect that the 1900 fair will be a financial success even though they had heavy odds to contend with in the line of what we should have thought impossible -they have spread the impression of a funeral service at one and the same indivisible point of time throughout a continent. Mr. Huntington, the great builder and manager of American Southwestern railways, died, and, as he was very popular throughout his lines, those who had been in his employ wished to pay to his memory some special and striking honor. With the half poetic, half practical feeling which often distin-guishes American acts, they arranged that at the moment when in New York the body of their late chief was carried from the church to the grave the trains upon the many systems of lines which he had controlled should as by some com-mon and self-derived impulse arrest their movement. As the coffin was lifted, through thousands of miles of line covering the whole distance from the Atlantic to the Pacific, every train stopped. The communication of a continent was arrested as by some supernatural command. Not a wheel turned until the body had been lowered, when, as if released by some Impulse common to all, communication and ordinary life were resumed. That was a really fine idea finely carried out. The dead man had created the lines, had, as it were, given them breath, and when life stopped with him, so, as in sympathy, it momentarily did with them .- [London Spectator.
